1. Train service between Heiho and Peian is very irregular; there appears to be no definite schedule. As far as could be determined, only military supplies were being transported in September 1947.
2. The first column below lists the names of the stations between the two cities. The other columns give the number of civilian railway personnel at each station and - where known - the number of Chinese Communist railway guards.

Stations	Civilian Personnel (Chinese except as stated)	Guards
